Drexel University School of Education presents

CRITICAL CONVERSATIONS IN URBAN EDUCATION

[Teach Us All
Segregation for a New Generation]

Register Now

FRIDAY, MARCH 16, 2018
5:30 pm – 8:00 pm

Teach Us All is a documentary and social justice campaign on educational inequality set against the backdrop of the 1957 Little Rock school crisis. Sixty years after the Little Rock Nine faced violent resistance when desegregating Central High in Arkansas, America's schools continue to represent the key battleground of the Civil Rights Movement. Teach Us All demonstrates powerful lessons from history within a timely context, emphasizing the need for unity and collective action to rectify the disparities among America's children.

The screening will be followed by a panel discussion with stakeholders in education including:

Deborah Gordon Klehr, Executive Director, Education Law Center
Kim Ellerbee, Principal, Samuel Powel Elementary School
Christian Edge, Director of K-12 School Work, Drexel University

For more information, call 215-895-0900, email ajh357@drexel.edu or visit drexel.edu/soe/ccue.

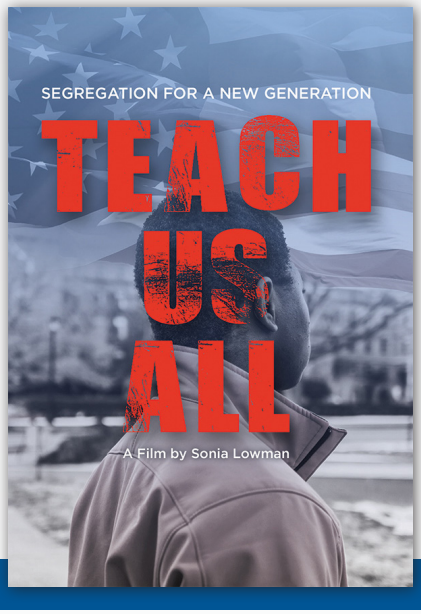
RSVP online: SurveyMonkey.com/r/TeachUsAll
Event will be streamed live online. A link will be sent to those who register.

LOCATION:

Behrakis Grand Hall
3210 Chestnut Street
Philadelphia, PA 19104

Refreshments & light snacks will be served.



Join the discussion on Twitter by using #TeachUsAll.

DREXEL UNIVERSITY
School of Education

This screening is part of the 20th annual conference of the National Association of Multicultural Education-PA Chapter.